Global businesses face daily situations where translated content is needed. Whether it's an email in another language to one of your global offices, social media posts from your international markets or queries from your in-country product users, there's an urgency for businesses to understand – and communicate - fast

While many translation options exist, they often leave users wanting something more. Across departments and functions, business users are relying on a patchwork of solutions that ultimately fall short. Users may ask bilingual colleagues for help, scour the internet for free translation utilities, wait in line for internal translation resources to free up, or spend valuable time trying to find the one solution that delivers the perfect blend of intelligence, innovation and expertise.

Amid all of this confusion, how do you know what's best for you? All you want is something secure, reliable, fast and easy to use.

SDL SLATE, Smart Language Translation for the Enterprise, offers a smarter, more secure, proven solution for today's busy global professional. Backed by trusted language service provider SDL and using the latest Linguistic AI™ to make translation intelligent, SDL SLATE helps today's businesses break through the language barriers holding them back.

Smart Language Translation for the Enterprise

Secure to the core

SDL SLATE's enterprise security protects your business and your business content. A proven, GDPR-compliant, fully secure online environment ensures content is never exposed, re-used or shared without your explicit permission. A secure data center complies with all regulatory protocols and to the highest professional standards.

Machine first, human optimized

SDL SLATE incorporates the perfect blend of award-winning technology and human expertise. Proprietary neural machine translation (NMT) combined with 1,400+ in-house human linguistic experts to review and revise your content ensures you receive the quality you need. With every completed project, the AI backbone learns, offering continuous, personalized improvement.

Built for business to make your job easier

No more waiting for project quotes or requesting purchase orders. Built for the way today's business works, SDL SLATE's easy subscription plans provide transparent and predictable pricing. Simply select the plan that works for your business based on the documents you typically translate, enter your credit card payment details and never count words again. Translate as much content as you need as often as you need. Thanks to SDL SLATE's smart automation, powered by AI, most projects complete within 48 hours.
